

A personal mission and vision statement is helpful for job-seekers to identify their core values and beliefs. (Carpenter, 2010)

Michael Goodman states that a personal mission statement is “an articulation of what you’re all about and what success looks like to you”. (Goodman, 2001)

PERSONAL MISSION AND VISION STATEMENT

Past Success:

- Received an accolade for exhibiting strong reporting and auditing abilities.
- Discovered an online university and degree program that catered to my requirements for further studies.
- Assisted a friend in finding an appropriate MS degree program and ensured he succeeded in securing admission.
- Created a paperless itinerary design for my logistics company to efficiently plan routes without the hassle of writing everything down first.

Successes related to information gathering, analysis, and finding solutions with recommendations.

Core Values:

- Leadership skills
- Commitment
- Collaboration

- Compassionate
- Industrious
- Hardworking
- Integrity & Respect
- Honesty
- Creativity
- Patience
- Analytical Reasoning
- Dynamic Approach
- Positive Outlook

Most important:

- Leadership skill
- Commitment
- Analytical reasoning

Contributions:

Towards the world: to help facilitate the movement of goods and services across borders, enabling international trade and commerce. To ensure the efficient delivery of aid and relief to disaster-stricken areas.

Towards my employer: to oversee the movement of goods and materials within a company's supply chain and to ensure that the company's operations are efficient, cost-effective, and profitable.

Towards friends and family: Supporting the family financially and morally. Help family members achieve their goals and be a positive example for the children as they grow up. To help the family and friends to manage their resources more effectively.

My Goals:

Short-term: To find the right balance between my studies and job that allows me to learn new skills while being productive at work.

Long-term: To complete my degree in business administration, and further studies as Financial Analyst, diversify my interest in other aspects of business and finance and develop a strategy on how to blend skills acquired from both disciplines.

Mission Statement:

As an individual, to have a fulfilling life, one with a lot of creative moments where my enthusiasm leads me to new experiences. As an employee, my mission is to lead and optimize the supply chain process by implementing innovative and efficient logistics solutions. I aim to enhance customer satisfaction by providing timely and cost-effective delivery of goods while minimizing environmental impact and maximizing profitability.

Vision statement:

My vision as a future logistics manager is to become a strategic partner to businesses by creating sustainable and socially responsible logistics operations. I strive to achieve operational excellence and to be recognized as a leader in the industry by driving innovation, developing talented teams, and embracing emerging technologies. I am committed to delivering the highest standards of service and to continuously improving our performance to exceed our customers' expectations.
